Take attractive photos of your menu items.
Users may visit the MENU Module Training webpage on www.squaremeals.org to access the “Food Photography Basics” training. This training can help users take attractive photos of menu items that will help market menu items to parents and students through SchoolCafé.

Tip: In addition to the recommendations found in the “Food Photography Basics” curriculum, users should not use drawings to represent menu items and should make sure that images uploaded for menu items do not include text.

Tip: Keep in mind that anyone from the public can view menus on schoolcafe.com as a guest. Be careful about the photographs you publish to SchoolCafé and consider how the photographs represent your meal service to the public.
Give your menu items attractive names and descriptions.
Users should give menu items attractive names and descriptions to appeal to students and parents.

Tip: Names and descriptions should appeal to the senses (touch, taste, smell, and sight), highlight the positive attributes of the menu item, include catchy words, and share the message in less words.

EXAMPLES:

Name: Baked Chicken
Marketing Name: Shakin' Crispy Baked Chicken
Marketing Description: Succulent chicken flawlessly seasoned and baked to crispy perfection.

Name: Zucchini
Marketing Name: Zucchini Fire Stix
